Shocking Statistics About the Millennial Generation

(and no, it's not all about how many trophies we won as kids)

- Around 25-30 million twentysomethings live back at home with their parents, the highest percentage ever recorded in the US. (25-30% US Census Bureau)
- Millennials are the largest generation at over 90 million in the US, and are the most educated generation in history.

With the supply of educated workers much higher than the demand for them in the workforce, the job hunt has become the Millennial version of the Hunger Games – without the cameras or any interaction with Jennifer Lawrence.

- Average college debt for a Millennial is around $33,000 with the median household income remaining the same since 1999.

With the national college debt now at 1.3 trillion dollars and college tuition seeing a 1,140% increase since the late 70s, coupled with the longest stretch of income stagnation in the modern era, no wonder why the highest percentage of twentysomethings ever recorded are living back with their parents.

- 40% of unemployed workers are Millennials. (US Census Data)
